GrowthPal said it is making smaller transactions, around $1-50 million, economically viable and scalable. "This is a segment often neglected by traditional investment bankers due to the high costs associated with deal sourcing and execution," Bhandari said.

GrowthPal leverages AI to trend among Indian IT companies seeking to acquire small-to mid-sized IT services firms globally, aiming to access new clients, expand geographically, build onshore and nearshore teams, and establish a broader global presence," he said. According to Bhandari, AI-enabled M&A is transforming how buyers identify and evaluate potential targets. Rather than opting for large, one-off acquisitions, companies are focusing on a series of smaller, more frequent deals to create a continuous acquisition engine. This approach encourages them to look beyond businesses that are actively for sale, proactively identifying those with valuable capabilities or technologies.

GrowthPal's research for 2024 shows a surge in crossborder deals in IT services, especially in generative AI, blockchain, and regional expansions. There has been a rise in inbound and outbound IT services cross-border deals in the Indian market in 2024.

Growthpal leverages data from over 5 million small- and mid-sized companies across 60 sources and geographies. It functions as an AI-powered copilot to the corporate development teams of acquirers.

Trump's latest: 100% tariff on Brics nations

LAST WEEK, INDIA'S commerce and industry minister Piyush Goyal had allayed fears about adverse implications of Trump's protectionist policies on India, citing the strong and growing ties between the two countries under Prime Minister Narendra Modi.

The latest threat was delivered by Trump through a social media post. He had issued similar threats to China, Canada and Mexico. Trump justifies the moves by quoting the US's status as the world's biggest importer — inward shipments of the country stood at $3.17 trillion in 2023. "Trump's threat to impose

100% tariffs on countries adopting a BRICS currency is unrealistic and more symbolic than practical. Tariffs of this scale would harm US consumers by raising prices on imports, disrupt global trade, and risk retaliation from key trading partners," founder of the Global Trade Research Initiative Ajay Srivastava said.

The nine-nation grouping, of which India is a founding member, in its 16th summit at Kazan in Russia last month, provided a push to the idea of trade settlement among members in local currencies. The members called for strengthening of correspondent banking networks within BRICS and enabling settlements in local currencies in line with BRICS Cross-Border Payments Initiative (BCBPI). Something concrete may emerge after further discussions in the coming months, officials had said after the summit.

While the US dollar dominates global trade accounting for 90% of the transactions, other convertible currencies like Japanese yen, euro and British pound too are integral to global commerce. "The United States has not objected to their use. The proposed BRICS currency is simply an extension of these existing alternatives, aiming to facilitate trade among member countries and reduce overreliance on a single currency," Srivastava said.

It is the US's action that forced countries to look at alternatives to the dollar. The US has the history of leveraging its influence over global financial systems such as the SWIFT network for imposing unilateral sanctions.

SWIFT—the Society for Worldwide Interbank Financial Telecommunication—is essential for secure and standardised international financial transactions."By blocking countries like Russia and Iran from accessing SWIFT, the US has effectively weaponised the global financial infrastructure, forcing other nations to find alternative payment mechanisms to continue legitimate trade," he said.

It was after Russia was disconnected from SWIFT after the start of its war on Ukraine that the Reserve Bank of India (RBI) came up with a circular allowing invoicing and payment of international trade transactions in rupees.

Around 20 authorised dealer banks in India have been permitted to open 92 special rupee vostro accounts of partner banks from over 22 countries to facilitate this trade.

According to Srivastava, imposing a 100% tariff on BRICS countries could backfire economically."Imports into the US would simply shift to third countries, potentially increasing costs for American consumers without bringing manufacturing jobs back home. The US has become less competitive in manufacturing labour-intensive goods due to higher production costs, and tariffs are unlikely to reverse this trend," he said

away from the US dollar is a complex process driven by economic diversification, not easily deterred by threats. Such rhetoricignores the interdependence of global economies and oversimplifies the challenges in enforcing such drastic measures, Srivastava said.

Additionally, the global shift

FROM THE FRONT PAGE

Pressure mounts after drop in GDP but RBI may not budge

ASHIMA GOYAL, A former member of the MPC, believes that the central bank "should" cut rates this week. The moderation in GDP growth "provides a persuasive data point to induce them (MPC members) to do so," said Goyal.

chief economist at IDFC Bank, "The expectations (of rate cut) have shifted to December be $cause \, now \, more \, focus \, is \, on \, GDP$ growth than inflation figures." Both finance minister Nir-mala Sitharaman and commerce and industry minister Piyush Goyal have called for interest rate reductions to stimulate economic growth.

While Sitharaman urged banks to reduce the cost of borrowing for businesses by making interest rates "affordable," Goyal said his "personal opinion"was that the RBI should cut the key benchmark interest rates to boost economic growth and ignore food prices while deciding on monetary policy.

However, the apex bank is unlikely to take any rate action, believe most others. "Given the rather uncertain global environment and the possible impact on inflation and the fact that inflation has been averaging close to 5.9% in the last two months, a status quo on the repo rate will be the logical outcome from the policy," said Madan Sabnavis, chief economist at Bank of Baroda.

He also believes that there would be a change in RBI projections for both inflation and GDP, as inflation has been higher so far than the RBI forecast for the third quarter, and GDP growth has come much below expectations in the second quarter.

Although the apex bank changed its monetary policy stance to 'neutral' from 'withdrawal of accommodation' in October, it has kept the repo rate unchanged at 6.5% since February 2023 due to high inflation.

Experts say the rate-setting panel is likely to wait and assess whether the decline in growth is a one-off phenomenon or the start of a trend.

"We are not expecting it (a rate cut) in December because the central bank has to look at whether this slowdown is structural or transient in nature. Therefore, MPC members would like to wait for one more print to ascertain if it is something structurally happening, said Aditya Vyas, chief economist, STCI Primary Dealer.

Experts expect the RBI to take measures to ease liquidity in the banking system. Liquidity in the banking system slipped into deficit last week after two months, primarily because of outflows due to goods and services tax (GST) payments.

"With headline CPI at 6.2%, cutting the repo rate immediately (in December) may not be an option for the monetary policy committee. However, the central bank will likely consider infusing a larger quantum of liquidity," said Siddhartha Sanyal, chief economist and head of research at Bandhan Bank.

Trump's threat to the Brics nations came via a social media post

Trump's latest: 100% tariff on Brics nations

LAST WEEK, INDIA'S commerce and industry minister Piyush Goyal had allayed fears about adverse implications of Trump's protectionist policies on India, citing the strong and growing ties between the two countries under Prime Minister Narendra Modi.

The latest threat was delivered by Trump through a social media post. He had issued similarthreats to China, Canada and Mexico. Trump justifies the moves by quoting the US's status as the world's biggest importer — inward shipments of the country stood at $3.17 trillion in 2023.

"Trump's threat to impose 100% tariffs on countries adopting a BRICS currency is unrealistic and more symbolic than practical. Tariffs of this scalewould harm US consumers by raising prices on imports, disrupt global trade, and risk retaliation from key trading partners," founder of the Global Trade Research Initiative Ajay Srivastava said.

The nine-nation grouping, of which India is a founding member, in its 16th summit at Kazan in Russia last month, provided a push to the idea of trade settlement among members in local currencies. The members called for strengthening of correspondent banking networks within BRICS and enabling settlements in local currencies in line with BRICS Cross-Border Payments Initiative (BCBPI). Something concrete may emerge after further discussions in the coming months, officials had said after the summit.

reliance on a single currency," Srivastava said.

While the US dollar dominates global trade accounting for 90% of the transactions, other convertible currencies like Japanese yen, euro and British pound too are integral to global commerce. "The United States has not objected to their use. The proposed BRICS currency is simply an extension of these existing alternatives, aiming to facilitate trade among member countries and reduce over-

It is the US's action that forced countries to look at alternatives to the dollar. The US has the history of leveraging its influence over global financial systems such as the SWIFT network for imposing unilateral sanctions.

SWIFT—the Society for Worldwide Interbank Financial Telecommunication—is essential for secure and standardised international financial transactions."Byblocking countries like Russia and Iran from accessing SWIFT, the US has effectively weaponised the global financial infrastructure, forcing other nations to find alternative payment mechanisms to continue legitimate trade," he said.

It was after Russia was disconnected from SWIFT after the start of its war on Ukraine that the Reserve Bank of India (RBI) came up with a circular allowing invoicing and payment of international trade transactions in rupees.

Around 20 authorised dealer banks in India have been permitted to open 92 special rupee vostro accounts of partner banks from over 22 countries to facilitate this trade.

According to Srivastava, imposing a 100% tariff on BRICS countries could backfire economically."Imports into the US would simply shift to third countries, potentially increasing costs for American consumers without bringing manufacturing jobs back home. The US has become less competitive in manufacturing labour-intensive goods due to higher production costs, and tariffs are unlikely to reverse this trend," he said

Additionally, the global shift away from the US dollar is a complex process driven by economic diversification, not easily deterred by threats. Such rhetoricignores the interdependence of global economies and oversimplifies the challenges in enforcing such drastic measures, Srivastava said.

EPFO wage ceiling set to be doubled

WAGE CEILING UNDER EPF and ESI refers to the salary threshold up to which EPF and ESI contribution is mandatory under law. The amount of 'employee's contribution' towards EPF and ESI is required to be deducted from the salary of employees by the employer and be deposited with the EPFO and ESIC.The employers are required to match the contribution.

As per the extant rules, employees earning more than ₹15,000 have an option to opt out of EPF coverage. In case this threshold is raised by ₹15,000, the number of contributors will increase. Currently, the active subscribers under EPFO are around 70 million.

Under the EPFO, both the employee and employer contribute 12% each to the EPF account for employees earning ₹15,000 or less each month.

The employee's whole contribution goes into the provident fund account. But the employer's contribution is divided into two parts – 8.33% is allocated to the Employees' Pension Scheme (EPS) and remaining 3.67% goes into the provident fund account.

At present, the EPF contribu-

As per the extant rules, employees earning more than ₹15,000 have an option to opt out of EPF coverage

tion of an employee with a basic salary of ₹15,000 comes to ₹1,800 permonth. But say, if this wage ceiling is revised to ₹30,000, this contribution will rise to ₹3,600 per month, on a mandatory basis. For employers too, this number will rise proportionately on a monthly basis; and as a result, the corpus of the employee will increase upon retirement, and subsequently the pension payout.

SP Tiwari, the national general secretary of the Trade Union Coordination Centre (TUCC) and a member of the CBT-EPFO, said, "In many metro cities, including Delhi, the monthly salaries of many workers such as housekeepers, drivers, security guards, have exceeded ₹15,000 per month. Theyearn close to ₹20,000...It's necessary that the wage ceiling is raised so that they are also provided social security coverage under ESIC and EPFO."

Al-powered M&A deals on the rise: GrowthPal CEO

Says smaller transactions often neglected

ARTIFICIAL INTELLIGENCE (AI) IS helping information technology (IT) companies find potential merger and acquisition (M&A) targets, leading to a surge in such deals, especially small-ticket ones. Besides, global tech giants such as IBM, Accenture, and others are also making a string of acquisitions of Indian IT/SaaS firms to fortify their capabilities in technology consulting, digital transformation, IT infrastructure, cybersecurity, cloud solutions, and renewable energy analytics.

Maneesh Bhandari, cofounderand CEO of Pune-based fintech firm GrowthPal, said the company has facilitated 41 M&A deals in multiple geographies with the help of data and AI.

Founded in 2020 by Bhandari and Shalu Mitruka, GrowthPal specialises in offmarket deals both locally and internationally. The firm said it has curated 150 M&A pipelines

Pressure mounts after drop in GDP but RBI may not budge

ASHIMA GOYAL, A former member of the MPC, believes that the central bank "should" cut rates this week. The moderation in GDP growth "provides a persuasive data point to induce them (MPC members) to do so," said Goyal.

Added Gaura Sengupta, chief economist at IDFC Bank, "The expectations (of rate cut) have shifted to December because now more focus is on GDP growth than inflation figures." Both finance minister Nir-mala Sitharaman and commerce and industry minister Piyush Goyal have called for interest rate reductions to stimulate economic growth.

While Sitharaman urged banks to reduce the cost of borrowing for businesses by making interest rates "affordable," Goyal said his "personal opinion" was that the RBI should cut the key benchmark interest rates to boost economic growth and ignore food prices while deciding on monetary policy.

unlikely to take any rate action, believe most others. "Given the rather uncertain global environment and the possible impact on inflation and the fact that inflation has been averaging close to 5.9% in the last two months, a status quo on the repo rate will be the logical outcome from the policy," said Madan Sabnavis, chief economist at Bank of Baroda. He also believes that there would be a change in RBI projections for both inflation and GDP, as inflation has been higher so far than the RBI forecast for the third quarter, and GDP growth has come much below expectations in the second quarter.

Although the apex bank changed its monetary policy stance to 'neutral' from 'with-

Experts say the rate-setting panel is likely to wait and assess whether the decline in growth is a one-off phenomenon or the start of a trend.

"We are not expecting it (a rate cut) in December because the central bank has to look at whether this slowdown is structural or transient in nature. However, the apex bank is Therefore, MPC members would like to wait for one more print to ascertain if it is something structurally happening," said Aditya Vyas, chief economist, STCI Primary Dealer.

> Experts expect the RBI to take measures to ease liquidity in the banking system. Liquidity in the banking system slipped into deficit last week after two months, primarily because of outflows due to goods and services tax (GST) payments. "With headline CPI at 6.2%, cutting the repo rate immediately (in December) may not be an option for the monetary policy committee. However, the central bank will likely consider infusing a larger quantum of liquidity," said Siddhartha Sanyal, chief economist and head of research at Bandhan Bank.

Trump's latest: 100% tariff on Brics nations

LAST WEEK, INDIA'S commerce and industry minister Piyush Goyal had allayed fears about adverse implications of Trump's protectionist policies on India, citing the strong and growing ties between the two countries under Prime Minister Narendra Modi.

The latest threat was delivered by Trump through a social media post. He had issued similar threats to China, Canada and Mexico. Trump justifies the moves by quoting the US's status as the world's biggest importer — inward shipments of the country stood at $3.17 trillion in 2023. "Trump's threat to impose

100% tariffs on countries adopting a BRICS currency is unrealistic and more symbolic than practical. Tariffs of this scale would harm US consumers by raising prices on imports, disrupt global trade, and risk retaliation from key trading partners," founder of the Global Trade Research Initiative Ajay Srivastava said. The nine-nation grouping, of which India is a founding member, in its 16th summit at Kazan in Russia last month, provided a push to the idea of trade settlement among members in local currencies. The members called for strengthening of correspondent banking networks within BRICS and enabling settlements in local currencies in line with BRICS Cross-Border Payments Initiative (BCBPI). Something concrete may emerge after further discussions in the coming months, officials had said after the summit. While the US dollar dominates global trade accounting for 90% of the transactions, other convertible currencies like Japanese yen, euro and British pound too are integral to global commerce. "The United States has not objected to their use. The proposed BRICS currency is simply an extension of these existing alternatives, aiming to facilitate trade among member countries and reduce over-reliance on a single currency," Srivastava said. It is the US's action that forced countries to look at alternatives to the dollar. The US has the history of leveraging its influence over global financial systems such as the SWIFT network for imposing unilateral sanctions.

SWIFT—the Society for Worldwide Interbank Financial Telecommunication—is essential for secure and standardised international financial transactions."By blocking countries like Russia and Iran from accessing SWIFT, the US has effectively weaponised the global financial infrastructure, forcing other nations to find alternative payment mechanisms to continue legitimate trade," he said.

It was after Russia was disconnected from SWIFT after the start of its war on Ukraine that the Reserve Bank of India (RBI) came up with a circular allowing invoicing and payment of international trade transactions in

Around 20 authorised dealer banks in India have been permitted to open 92 special rupee vostro accounts of partner banks from over 22 countries to facilitate this trade. According to Srivastava, imposing a 100% tariff on BRICS countries could backfire economically."Imports into the US would simply shift to third countries, potentially increasing costs for American consumers without bringing manufactur ing jobs back home. The US has become less competitive in manufacturing labour-inten sive goods due to higher production costs, and tariffs are unli kely to reverse this trend," he said

away from the US dollar is a complex process driven by economic diversification, not easily deterred by threats. Such rhetoricignores the interdependence of global economies and oversimplifies the challenges in enforcing such drastic measures, Srivastava said.

EPFO wage ceiling set to be doubled

WAGE CEILING UNDER EPF and ESI refers to the salary threshold up to which EPF and ESI contribution is mandatory under law. The amount of contribution' 'employee's towards EPF and ESI is required to be deducted from the salary of employees by the employer and be deposited with the EPFO and ESIC. The employers are required to match the contribution.

As per the extant rules, employees earning more than ₹15,000 have an option to opt out of EPF coverage. In case this threshold is raised by ₹15,000, the number of contributors will increase. Currently, the active subscribers under EPFO are around 70 million. Under the EPFO, both the employee and employer contribute 12% each to the EPF account for employees earning ₹15,000 or less each month. The employee's whole contribution goes into the provident fund account. But the employer's contribution is divided into two parts – 8.33% is allocated to the Employees' Pension Scheme (EPS) and remaining 3.67% goes into the provident fund account.

At present, the EPF contribu-

As per the extant rules, employees earning more than ₹15,000 have an option to opt out of EPF coverage

salary of ₹15,000 comes to ₹1,800 permonth. But say, if this wage ceiling is revised to ₹30,000, this contribution will rise to ₹3,600 per month, on a mandatory basis. For employers too, this number will rise proportionately on a monthly basis; and as a result, the corpus of the employee will increase upon retirement, and subsequently the pension payout.

SP Tiwari, the national general secretary of the Trade Union Coordination Centre (TUCC) and a member of the CBT-EPFO, said, "In many metro cities, including Delhi, the monthly salaries of many work ers such as housekeepers, drivers, security guards, have exceeded ₹15,000 per month. They earn close to ₹20,000...It's necessary that the wage ceiling is raised so that they are also provided social security coverage under ESIC and EPFO." BENGALURU

Al-powered M&A deals on the rise: GrowthPal CEO

Says smaller transactions often neglected

ARTIFICIAL INTELLIGENCE (AI) IS helping information technology (IT) companies find potential merger and acquisition (M&A) targets, leading to a surge in such deals, especially small-ticketones.Besides,global tech giants such as IBM, Accen-ture, and others are also making a string of acquisitions of Indian IT/SaaS firms to fortify their capabilities in technology consulting, digital transformation, IT infrastructure, cybersecurity, cloud solutions, and renewable energy analytics.

Maneesh Bhandari, cofounder and CEO of Pune-based fintech firm GrowthPal, said the company has facilitated 41 M&A deals in multiple geographies with the help of data and AI.

Founded in 2020 by Bhandari and Shalu Mitruka, GrowthPal specialises in offmarket deals both locally and internationally. The firm said it has curated 150 M&A pipelines

Trump's latest: 100% tariff on Brics nations

LAST WEEK, INDIA'S commerce and industry minister Piyush Goyal had allayed fears about adverse implications of Trump's protectionist policies on India, citing the strong and growing ties between the two countries under Prime Minister Narendra Modi.

The latest threat was delivered by Trump through a social media post. He had issued similar threats to China, Canada and Mexico. Trump justifies the moves by quoting the US's status as the world's biggest importer — inward shipments of the country stood at $3.17 trillion in 2023. "Trump's threat to impose

100% tariffs on countries adopting a BRICS currency is unrealistic and more symbolic than practical. Tariffs of this scale would harm US consumers by raising prices on imports, disrupt global trade, and risk retaliation from key trading partners," founder of the Global Trade Research Initiative Ajay Srivastava said.

The nine-nation grouping, of which India is a founding member, in its 16th summit at Kazan in Russia last month, provided a push to the idea of trade settlement among members in local currencies. The members called for strengthening of correspondent banking networks within BRICS and enabling settlements in local currencies in line with BRICS Cross-Border Payments Initiative (BCBPI). Something concrete may emerge after further discussions in the coming months, officials had said after the summit.

While the US dollar dominates global trade accounting for 90% of the transactions, other convertible currencies like Japanese yen, euro and British pound too are integral to global commerce. "The United States has not objected to their use. The proposed BRICS currency is simply an extension of these existing alternatives, aiming to facilitate trade among member countries and reduce overreliance on a single currency," Srivastava said.

It is the US's action that forced countries to look at alternatives to the dollar. The US has the history of leveraging its influence over global financial systems such as the SWIFT network for imposing unilateral sanctions.

SWIFT—the Society for Worldwide Interbank Financial Telecommunication—is essential for secure and standardised international financial transactions."By blocking countries like Russia and Iran from accessing SWIFT, the US has effectively weaponised the global financial infrastructure, forcing other nations to find alternative payment mechanisms to continue legitimate trade," he said. It was after Russia was disconnected from SWIFT after the start of its war on Ukraine that the Reserve Bank of India (RBI) came up with a circular allowing invoicing and payment of international trade transactions in

Around 20 authorised dealer banks in India have been permitted to open 92 special rupee vostro accounts of partner banks from over 22 countries to facilitate this trade.

According to Srivastava, imposing a 100% tariff on BRICS countries could backfire economically."Imports into the US would simply shift to third countries, potentially increasing costs for American consumers without bringing manufacturing jobs back home. The US has become less competitive in manufacturing labour-intensive goods due to higher production costs, and tariffs are unli-

trend among Indian IT companies seeking to acquire small-to mid-sized IT services firms globally, aiming to access new clients, expand geographically, build onshore and nearshore teams, and establish a broader global presence," he said.

According to Bhandari, AIenabled M&A is transforming how buyers identify and evaluate potential targets. Rather than opting for large, one-off acquisitions, companies are focusing on a series of smaller, more frequent deals to create a continuous acquisition engine. This approach encourages them to look beyond businesses that are actively for sale, proactively identifying those with valuable capabilities or technologies.

GrowthPal's research for 2024 shows a surge in crossborder deals in IT services, especially in generative AI, blockchain, and regional expansions. There has been a rise in inbound and outbound IT services cross-border deals in the Indian market in 2024.

Growthpal leverages data from over 5 million small- and mid-sized companies across 60 sources and geographies. It functions as an AI-powered copilot to the corporate development teams of acquirers.

Pressure mounts after drop in GDP but RBI may not budge

ASHIMA GOYAL, A former member of the MPC, believes that the central bank "should" cut rates this week. The moderation in GDP growth "provides a persuasive data point to induce them (MPC members) to do so," said Goyal. Added Gaura Sengupta, chief economist at IDFC Bank, "The expectations (of rate cut) have shifted to December because now more focus is on GDP growth than inflation figures." Both finance minister Nir-

mala Sitharaman and commerce and industry minister Piyush Goyal have called for interest rate reductions to stimulate economic growth.

While Sitharaman urged banks to reduce the cost of borrowing for businesses by making interest rates "affordable," Goyal said his "personal opinion" was that the RBI should cut the key benchmark interest rates to boost economic growth and ignore food prices while deciding on monetary policy.

unlikely to take any rate action, believe most others. "Given the rather uncertain global environment and the possible impact on inflation and the fact that inflation has been averaging close to 5.9% in the last two months, a status quo on the repo rate will be the logical outcome from the policy," said Madan Sabnavis, chief economist at Bank of Baroda. He also believes that there would be a change in RBI projections for both inflation and GDP, as inflation has been higher so far than the RBI forecast for the third quarter, and GDP growth has come much below expectations in the second quarter.

Although the apex bank changed its monetary policy stance to 'neutral' from 'with-

Experts say the rate-setting panel is likely to wait and assess whether the decline in growth is a one-off phenomenon or the start of a trend.

"We are not expecting it (a rate cut) in December because the central bank has to look at whether this slowdown is structural or transient in nature. However, the apex bank is Therefore, MPC members would like to wait for one more print to ascertain if it is something structurally happening," said Aditya Vyas, chief economist, STCI Primary Dealer.

> Experts expect the RBI to take measures to ease liquidity in the banking system. Liquidity in the banking system slipped into deficit last week after two months, primarily because of outflows due to goods and services tax (GST) payments. "With headline CPI at 6.2%, cutting the repo rate immediately (in December) may not be an option for the monetary policy committee. However, the central bank will likely consider infusing a larger quantum of liquidity," said Siddhartha Sanyal, chief economist and head of research at Bandhan Bank.

Trump's latest: 100% tariff on Brics nations

LAST WEEK, INDIA'S commerce and industry minister Piyush Goyal had allayed fears about adverse implications of Trump's protectionist policies on India, citing the strong and growing ties between the two countries under Prime Minister Narendra Modi.

The latest threat was delivered by Trump through a social media post. He had issued similar threats to China, Canada and Mexico. Trump justifies the moves by quoting the US's status as the world's biggest importer — inward shipments of the country stood at $3.17 trillion in 2023. "Trump's threat to impose

100% tariffs on countries adopting a BRICS currency is unrealistic and more symbolic than practical. Tariffs of this scale would harm US consumers by raising prices on imports, disrupt global trade, and risk retaliation from key trading partners," founder of the Global Trade Research Initiative Ajay Srivastava said.

The nine-nation grouping, of which India is a founding member, in its 16th summit at Kazan in Russia last month, provided a push to the idea of trade settlement among members in local currencies. The members called for strengthening of correspondent banking networks within BRICS and enabling settlements in local currencies in line with BRICS Cross-Border Payments Initiative (BCBPI). Something concrete may emerge after further discussions in the coming months, officials had said after the summit.

While the US dollar dominates global trade accounting for 90% of the transactions, other convertible currencies like Japanese yen, euro and British pound too are integral to global commerce. "The United States has not objected to their use. The proposed BRICS currency is simply an extension of these existing alternatives, aiming to facilitate trade among member countries and reduce overreliance on a single currency," Srivastava said.

It is the US's action that forced countries to look at alternatives to the dollar. The US has the history of leveraging its influence over global financial systems such as the SWIFT network for imposing unilateral sanctions.

SWIFT—the Society for Worldwide Interbank Financial Telecommunication—is essential for secure and standardised international financial transactions."By blocking countries like Russia and Iran from accessing SWIFT, the US has effectively weaponised the global financial infrastructure, forcing other nations to find alternative payment mechanisms to continue legitimate trade," he said.

It was after Russia was disconnected from SWIFT after the start of its war on Ukraine that the Reserve Bank of India (RBI) came up with a circular allowing invoicing and payment of international trade transactions in rupees.

Around 20 authorised dealer banks in India have been permitted to open 92 special rupee vostro accounts of partner banks from over 22 countries to facilitate this trade.

According to Srivastava, imposing a 100% tariff on BRICS countries could backfire economically."Imports into the US would simply shift to third countries, potentially increasing costs for American consumers without bringing manufacturing jobs back home. The US has become less competitive in manufacturing labour-intensive goods due to higher production costs, and tariffs are unlikely to reverse this trend," he said

away from the US dollar is a complex process driven by economic diversification, not easily deterred by threats. Such rhetoricignores the interdependence of global economies and oversimplifies the challenges in enforcing such drastic measures, Srivastava said.

Additionally, the global shift

employees earning more than ₹15,000 have an option to opt out of EPF coverage. In case this threshold is raised by ₹15,000, the number of contributors will increase. Currently, the active subscribers under EPFO are around 70 million. Under the EPFO, both the employee and employer contribute 12% each to the EPF account for employees earning ₹15,000 or less each month.

The employee's whole contribution goes into the provident fund account. But the employer's contribution is divided into two parts – 8.33% is allocated to the Employees' Pension Scheme (EPS) and remaining 3.67% goes into the provident fund account.

tion of an employee with a basic salary of ₹15,000 comes to ₹1,800 permonth. But say, if this wage ceiling is revised to ₹30,000, this contribution will rise to ₹3,600 per month, on a mandatory basis. For employers too, this number will rise proportionately on a monthly basis; and as a result, the corpus of the employee will increase upon retirement, and subsequently the pension payout.

SP Tiwari, the national general secretary of the Trade Union Coordination Centre (TUCC) and a member of the CBT-EPFO, said, "In many metro cities, including Delhi, the monthly salaries of many workers such as housekeepers, drivers, security guards, have exceeded ₹15,000 per month. They earn close to ₹20,000...It's necessary that the wage ceiling is raised so that they are also provided social security coverage under ESIC and EPFO."

Pressure mounts after drop in GDP but RBI may not budge

ASHIMA GOYAL, A former member of the MPC, believes that the central bank "should" cut rates this week. The moderation in GDP growth "provides a persuasive data point to induce them (MPC members) to do so," said Goyal.

Added Gaura Sengupta, chief economist at IDFC Bank, "The expectations (of rate cut) have shifted to December because now more focus is on GDP growth than inflation figures."

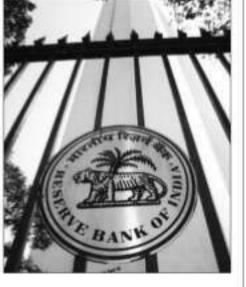

Both finance minister Nirmala Sitharaman and commerce and industry minister Piyush Goyal have called for interest rate reductions to stimulate economic growth.

While Sitharaman urged banks to reduce the cost of borrowing for businesses by making interest rates "affordable," Goyal said his "personal opinion" was that the RBI should cut the key benchmark interest rates to boost economic growth and ignore food prices while deciding on monetary policy.

unlikely to take any rate action, believe most others. "Given the rather uncertain global environment and the possible impact on inflation and the fact that inflation has been averaging close to 5.9% in the last two months, a status quo on the repo rate will be the logical outcome from the policy," said Madan Sabnavis, chief economist at Bank of Baroda. He also believes that there would be a change in RBI projections for both inflation and GDP, as inflation has been higher so far than the RBI forecast for the third quarter, and GDP growth has come much below expectations in the second quarter.

Although the apex bank changed its monetary policy stance to 'neutral' from 'with-

Experts say the rate-setting panel is likely to wait and assess whether the decline in growth is a one-off phenomenon or the start of a trend.

"We are not expecting it (a rate cut) in December because the central bank has to look at whether this slowdown is structural or transient in nature. However, the apex bank is Therefore, MPC members would like to wait for one more print to ascertain if it is something structurally happening," said Aditya Vyas, chief economist, STCI Primary Dealer.

> Experts expect the RBI to take measures to ease liquidity in the banking system. Liquidity in the banking system slipped into deficit last week after two months, primarily because of outflows due to goods and services tax (GST) payments. "With headline CPI at 6.2%, cutting the repo rate immediately (in December) may not be an option for the monetary policy committee. However, the central bank will likely consider infusing a larger quantum of liquidity," said Siddhartha Sanyal, chief economist and head of research at Bandhan Bank.

Trump's latest: 100% tariff on Brics nations

LAST WEEK, INDIA'S commerce and industry minister Piyush Goyal had allayed fears about adverse implications of Trump's protectionist policies on India, citing the strong and growing ties between the two countries under Prime Minister Narendra Modi.

The latest threat was delivered by Trump through a social media post. He had issued similar threats to China, Canada and Mexico. Trump justifies the moves by quoting the US's status as the world's biggest importer — inward shipments of the country stood at $3.17 trillion in 2023. "Trump's threat to impose

100% tariffs on countries adopting a BRICS currency is unrealistic and more symbolic than practical. Tariffs of this scale would harm US consumers by raising prices on imports, disrupt global trade, and risk retaliation from key trading partners," founder of the Global Trade Research Initiative Ajay Srivastava said. The nine-nation grouping, of which India is a founding member, in its 16th summit at Kazan in Russia last month, provided a push to the idea of trade settlement among members in local currencies. The members called for strengthening of correspondent banking networks within BRICS and enabling settlements in local currencies in line with BRICS Cross-Border Payments Initiative (BCBPI). Something concrete may emerge after further discussions in the coming months, officials had said after the summit. While the US dollar dominates global trade accounting for 90% of the transactions, other convertible currencies like Japanese yen, euro and British pound too are integral to global commerce. "The United States has not objected to their use. The proposed BRICS currency is simply an extension of these existing alternatives, aiming to facilitate trade among member countries and reduce over-reliance on a single currency," Srivastava said. It is the US's action that

forced countries to look at alternatives to the dollar. The US has the history of leveraging its influence over global financial systems such as the SWIFT network for imposing unilateral sanctions.

SWIFT—the Society for Worldwide Interbank Financial Telecommunication—is essential for secure and standardised international financial transactions."By blocking countries like Russia and Iran from accessing SWIFT, the US has effectively weaponised the global financial infrastructure, forcing other nations to find alternative payment mechanisms to continue legitimate trade," he said.

It was after Russia was disconnected from SWIFT after the start of its war on Ukraine that the Reserve Bank of India (RBI) came up with a circular allowing invoicing and payment of international trade transactions in

Around 20 authorised dealer banks in India have been permitted to open 92 special rupee vostro accounts of partner banks from over 22 countries to facilitate this trade. According to Srivastava, imposing a 100% tariff on BRICS countries could backfire economically."Imports into the US would simply shift to third countries, potentially increasing costs for American consumers without bringing manufactur ing jobs back home. The US has become less competitive in manufacturing labour-inten sive goods due to higher production costs, and tariffs are unli kely to reverse this trend," he said

away from the US dollar is a complex process driven by economic diversification, not easily deterred by threats. Such rhetoricignores the interdependence of global economies and oversimplifies the challenges in enforcing such drastic measures, Srivastava said.

EPFO wage ceiling set to be doubled

WAGE CEILING UNDER EPF and ESI refers to the salary threshold up to which EPF and ESI contribution is mandatory under law. The amount of contribution' 'employee's towards EPF and ESI is required to be deducted from the salary of employees by the employer and be deposited with the EPFO and ESIC. The employers are required to match the contribution.

As per the extant rules, employees earning more than ₹15,000 have an option to opt out of EPF coverage. In case this threshold is raised by ₹15,000, the number of contributors will increase. Currently, the active subscribers under EPFO are around 70 million. Under the EPFO, both the employee and employer contribute 12% each to the EPF account for employees earning ₹15,000 or less each month.

The employee's whole contribution goes into the provident fund account. But the employer's contribution is divided into two parts – 8.33% is allocated to the Employees' Pension Scheme (EPS) and remaining 3.67% goes into the provident fund account.

tion of an employee with a basic salary of ₹15,000 comes to ₹1,800 permonth. But say, if this wage ceiling is revised to ₹30,000, this contribution will rise to ₹3,600 per month, on a mandatory basis. For employers too, this number will rise proportionately on a monthly basis; and as a result, the corpus of the employee will increase upon retirement, and subsequently the pension payout.

SP Tiwari, the national general secretary of the Trade Union Coordination Centre (TUCC) and a member of the CBT-EPFO, said, "In many metro cities, including Delhi, the monthly salaries of many work ers such as housekeepers, drivers, security guards, have exceeded ₹15,000 per month. They earn close to ₹20,000...It's necessary that the wage ceiling is raised so that they are also provided social security cover-

ARTIFICIAL INTELLIGENCE (AI) IS helping information technology (IT) companies find potential merger and acquisition (M&A) targets, leading to a surge in such deals, especially small-ticket ones. Besides, global tech giants such as IBM, Accenture, and others are also making a string of acquisitions of Indian IT/SaaS firms to fortify their capabilities in technology consulting, digital transformation, IT infrastructure, cybersecurity, cloud solutions, and renewable energy analytics.

Maneesh Bhandari, cofounderand CEO of Pune-based fintech firm GrowthPal, said the company has facilitated 41 M&A deals in multiple geographies with the help of data and AI.

Founded in 2020 by Bhandari and Shalu Mitruka, GrowthPal specialises in offmarket deals both locally and internationally. The firm said it has curated 150 M&A pipelines trend among Indian IT companies seeking to acquire small-to mid-sized IT services firms globally, aiming to access new clients, expand geographically, build onshore and nearshore teams, and establish a broader global presence," he said.

According to Bhandari, AIenabled M&A is transforming how buyers identify and evaluate potential targets. Rather than opting for large, one-off acquisitions, companies are focusing on a series of smaller, more frequent deals to create a continuous acquisition engine. This approach encourages them to look beyond businesses that are actively for sale, proactively identifying those with valuable capabilities or technologies.

GrowthPal's research for 2024 shows a surge in crossborder deals in IT services, especially in generative AI, blockchain, and regional expansions. There has been a rise in inbound and outbound IT services cross-border deals in the Indian market in 2024.

"Given the rather uncertain global environment and the possible impact on inflation and the fact that inflation has been averaging close to 5.9% in the last two months, a status quo on the repo rate will be the logical outcome from the policy," said Madan Sabnavis, chief economist at Bank of Baroda. He also believes that there would be a change in RBI projections for both inflation and GDP, as inflation has been higher so far than the RBI forecast for the third quarter, and GDP growth has come much below expectations in the second quarter.

Although the apex bank changed its monetary policy stance to 'neutral' from 'with-

Experts say the rate-setting panel is likely to wait and assess whether the decline in growth is a one-off phenomenon or the start of a trend.

"We are not expecting it (a rate cut) in December because the central bank has to look at whether this slowdown is structural or transient in nature. However, the apex bank is Therefore, MPC members would like to wait for one more print to ascertain if it is something structurally happening," said Aditya Vyas, chief economist, STCI Primary Dealer.

> Experts expect the RBI to take measures to ease liquidity in the banking system. Liquidity in the banking system slipped into deficit last week after two months, primarily because of outflows due to goods and services tax (GST) payments. "With headline CPI at 6.2%, cutting the repo rate immediately (in December) may not be an option for the monetary policy committee. However, the central bank will likely consider infusing a larger quantum of liquidity," said Siddhartha Sanyal, chief economist and head of research at Bandhan Bank.

Trump's latest: 100% tariff on Brics nations

LAST WEEK, INDIA'S commerce and industry minister Piyush Goyal had allayed fears about adverse implications of Trump's protectionist policies on India, citing the strong and growing ties between the two countries under Prime Minister Narendra Modi.

The latest threat was delivered by Trump through a social media post. He had issued similar threats to China, Canada and Mexico. Trump justifies the moves by quoting the US's status as the world's biggest importer — inward shipments of the country stood at $3.17 trillion in 2023. "Trump's threat to impose

100% tariffs on countries adopting a BRICS currency is unrealistic and more symbolic than practical. Tariffs of this scale would harm US consumers by raising prices on imports, disrupt global trade, and risk retaliation from key trading partners," founder of the Global Trade Research Initiative Ajay Srivastava said. The nine-nation grouping, of which India is a founding member, in its 16th summit at Kazan in Russia last month, provided a push to the idea of trade settlement among members in local currencies. The members called for strengthening of correspondent banking networks within BRICS and enabling settlements in local currencies in line with BRICS Cross-Border Payments Initiative (BCBPI). Something concrete may emerge after further discussions in the coming months, officials had said after the summit.

While the US dollar dominates global trade accounting for 90% of the transactions, other convertible currencies like Japanese yen, euro and British pound too are integral to global commerce. "The United States has not objected to their use. The proposed BRICS currency is simply an extension of these existing alternatives, aiming to facilitate trade among member countries and reduce over-reliance on a single currency," Srivastava said.

It is the US's action that forced countries to look at alternatives to the dollar. The US has the history of leveraging its influence over global financial systems such as the SWIFT network for imposing unilateral sanctions.

SWIFT—the Society for Worldwide Interbank Financial Telecommunication—is essential for secure and standardised international financial transactions."By blocking countries like Russia and Iran from accessing SWIFT, the US has effectively weaponised the global financial infrastructure, forcing other nations to find alternative payment mechanisms to continue legitimate trade," he said.

It was after Russia was disconnected from SWIFT after the start of its war on Ukraine that the Reserve Bank of India (RBI) came up with a circular allowing invoicing and payment of international trade transactions in

Around 20 authorised dealer banks in India have been permitted to open 92 special rupee vostro accounts of partner banks from over 22 countries to facilitate this trade.

According to Srivastava, imposing a 100% tariff on BRICS countries could backfire economically."Imports into the US would simply shift to third countries, potentially increasing costs for American consumers without bringing manufactur ing jobs back home. The US has become less competitive in manufacturing labour-inten sive goods due to higher production costs, and tariffs are unli kely to reverse this trend," he said

away from the US dollar is a complex process driven by economic diversification, not easily deterred by threats. Such rhetoricignores the interdependence of global economies and oversimplifies the challenges in enforcing such drastic measures, Srivastava said.

EPFO wage ceiling set to be doubled

WAGE CEILING UNDER EPF and ESI refers to the salary threshold up to which EPF and ESI contribution is mandatory under law. The amount of contribution' 'employee's towards EPF and ESI is required to be deducted from the salary of employees by the employer and be deposited with the EPFO and ESIC. The employers are required to match the contribution.

As per the extant rules, employees earning more than ₹15,000 have an option to opt out of EPF coverage. In case this threshold is raised by ₹15,000, the number of contributors will increase. Currently, the active subscribers under EPFO are around 70 million. Under the EPFO, both the employee and employer contribute 12% each to the EPF account for employees earning ₹15,000 or less each month.

The employee's whole contribution goes into the provident fund account. But the employer's contribution is divided into two parts – 8.33% is allocated to the Employees' Pension Scheme (EPS) and remaining 3.67% goes into the provident fund account.

At present, the EPF contribu-

As per the extant rules, employees earning more than ₹15,000 have an option to opt out of EPF coverage

tion of an employee with a basic salary of ₹15,000 comes to ₹1,800 permonth. But say, if this wage ceiling is revised to ₹30,000, this contribution will rise to ₹3,600 per month, on a mandatory basis. For employers too, this number will rise proportionately on a monthly basis; and as a result, the corpus of the employee will increase upon retirement, and subsequently the pension payout. SP Tiwari, the national general secretary of the Trade Union Coordination Centre (TUCC) and a member of the CBT-EPFO, said, "In many metro cities, including Delhi, the monthly salaries of many work ers such as housekeepers, drivers, security guards, have exceeded ₹15,000 per month. They earn close to ₹20,000...It's necessary that the wage ceiling is raised so that they are also provided social security coverage under ESIC and EPFO."

trend among Indian IT companies seeking to acquire small-to mid-sized IT services firms globally, aiming to access new clients, expand geographically, build onshore and nearshore teams, and establish a broader global presence," he said.

According to Bhandari, AIenabled M&A is transforming how buyers identify and evaluate potential targets. Rather than opting for large, one-off acquisitions, companies are focusing on a series of smaller, more frequent deals to create a continuous acquisition engine.

This approach encourages them to look beyond businesses that are actively for sale, proactively identifying those with valuable capabilities or technologies.

GrowthPal's research for 2024 shows a surge in crossborder deals in IT services, especially in generative AI, blockchain, and regional expansions. There has been a rise in inbound and outbound IT services cross-border deals in the Indian market in 2024.

Growthpal leverages data from over 5 million small- and mid-sized companies across 60 sources and geographies. It functions as an AI-powered copilot to the corporate development teams of acquirers.

Pressure mounts after drop in GDP but RBI may not budge

ASHIMA GOYAL, A former member of the MPC, believes that the central bank "should" cut rates this week. The moderation in GDP growth "provides a persuasive data point to induce them (MPC members) to do so," said Goyal.

Added Gaura Sengupta, chief economist at IDFC Bank, "The expectations (of rate cut) have shifted to December because now more focus is on GDP growth than inflation figures." Both finance minister Nir-

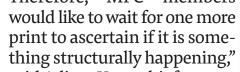

mala Sitharaman and commerce and industry minister Piyush Goyal have called for interest rate reductions to stimulate economic growth.

While Sitharaman urged banks to reduce the cost of borrowing for businesses by making interest rates "affordable," Goyal said his "personal opinion"was that the RBI should cut the key benchmark interest rates to boost economic growth and ignore food prices while deciding on monetary policy.

"The United States has not objected to their use. The proposed BRICS currency is simply an extension of these existing alternatives, aiming to facilitate trade among member countries and reduce overreliance on a single currency," Srivastava said.

It is the US's action that forced countries to look at alternatives to the dollar. The US has the history of leveraging its influence over global financial systems such as the SWIFT network for imposing unilateral sanctions.

SWIFT—the Society for Worldwide Interbank Financial Telecommunication—is essential for secure and standardised international financial transactions."By blocking countries like Russia and Iran from accessing SWIFT, the US has effectively weaponised the global financial infrastructure, forcing other nations to find alternative payment mechanisms to continue legitimate trade," he said. It was after Russia was disconnected from SWIFT after the start of its war on Ukraine that the Reserve Bank of India (RBI) came up with a circular allowing invoicing and payment of international trade transactions in

Around 20 authorised dealer banks in India have been permitted to open 92 special rupee vostro accounts of partner banks from over 22 countries to facilitate this trade.

According to Srivastava, imposing a 100% tariff on BRICS countries could backfire economically."Imports into the US would simply shift to third countries, potentially increasing costs for American consumers without bringing manufacturing jobs back home. The US has become less competitive in manufacturing labour-intensive goods due to higher production costs, and tariffs are unlikely to reverse this trend," he said

away from the US dollar is a complex process driven by economic diversification, not easily deterred by threats. Such rhetoric ignores the interdependence of global economies and oversimplifies the challenges in enforcing such drastic measures, Srivastava said.

According to Bhandari, AIenabled M&A is transforming how buyers identify and evaluate potential targets. Rather than opting for large, one-off acquisitions, companies are focusing on a series of smaller, more frequent deals to create a continuous acquisition engine. This approach encourages them to look beyond businesses that are actively for sale, proactively identifying those with valuable capabilities or technologies.

GrowthPal's research for 2024 shows a surge in crossborder deals in IT services, especially in generative AI, blockchain, and regional expansions. There has been a rise in inbound and outbound IT services cross-border deals in the Indian market in 2024.

Trump's latest: 100% tariff on Brics nations

LAST WEEK, INDIA'S commerce and industry minister Piyush Goyal had allayed fears about adverse implications of Trump's protectionist policies on India, citing the strong and growing ties between the two countries under Prime Minister Narendra Modi.

The latest threat was delivered by Trump through a social media post. He had issued similar threats to China, Canada and Mexico. Trump justifies the moves by quoting the US's status as the world's biggest importer — inward shipments of the country stood at $3.17 trillion in 2023.

"Trump's threat to impose 100% tariffs on countries adopting a BRICS currency is unrealistic and more symbolic than practical. Tariffs of this scale would harm US consumers by raising prices on imports, disrupt global trade, and risk retaliation from key trading partners," founder of the Global Trade Research Initiative Ajay Srivastava said.

The nine-nation grouping, of which India is a founding member, in its 16th summit at Kazan in Russia last month, provided a push to the idea of trade settlement among members in local currencies. The members called for strengthening of correspondent banking networks within BRICS and enabling settlements in local currencies in line with BRICS Cross-Border Payments Initiative (BCBPI). Something concrete may emerge after further discussions in the coming months, officials had said after the summit.

While the US dollar dominates global trade accounting for 90% of the transactions, other convertible currencies like Japanese yen, euro and British pound too are integral to global commerce. "The United States has not objected to their use. The proposed BRICS currency is simply an extension of these existing alternatives, aiming to facilitate trade among member countries and reduce overreliance on a single currency," Srivastava said.

It is the US's action that forced countries to look at alternatives to the dollar. The US has the history of leveraging its influence over global financial systems such as the SWIFT network for imposing unilateral sanctions.

SWIFT—the Society for Worldwide Interbank Financial Telecommunication—is essential for secure and standardised international financial transactions."By blocking countries like Russia and Iran from accessing SWIFT, the US has effectively weaponised the global financial infrastructure, forcing other nations to find alternative payment mechanisms to continue legitimate trade," he said.

It was after Russia was disconnected from SWIFT after the start of its war on Ukraine that the Reserve Bank of India (RBI) came up with a circular allowing invoicing and payment of international trade transactions in

Around 20 authorised dealer banks in India have been permitted to open 92 special rupee vostro accounts of partner banks from over 22 countries to facilitate this trade.

According to Srivastava, imposing a 100% tariff on BRICS countries could backfire economically."Imports into the US would simply shift to third countries, potentially increasing costs for American consumers without bringing manufacturing jobs back home. The US has become less competitive in manufacturing labour-intensive goods due to higher production costs, and tariffs are unlikely to reverse this trend," he said trend among Indian IT companies seeking to acquire small-to mid-sized IT services firms globally, aiming to access new clients, expand geographically, build onshore and nearshore teams, and establish a broader global presence," he said.

According to Bhandari, AIenabled M&A is transforming how buyers identify and evaluate potential targets. Rather than opting for large, one-off acquisitions, companies are focusing on a series of smaller, more frequent deals to create a continuous acquisition engine. This approach encourages them to look beyond businesses that are actively for sale, proactively

Pressure mounts after drop in GDP but RBI may not budge

ASHIMA GOYAL, A former member of the MPC, believes that the central bank "should" cut rates this week. The moderation in GDP growth "provides a persuasive data point to induce them (MPC members) to do so," said Goyal.

Added Gaura Sengupta, chief economist at IDFC Bank, "The expectations (of rate cut) have shifted to December because now more focus is on GDP growth than inflation figures."

Both finance minister Nirmala Sitharaman and commerce and industry minister Piyush Goyal have called for interest rate reductions to stimulate economic growth.

While Sitharaman urged banks to reduce the cost of borrowing for businesses by making interest rates "affordable," Goyal said his "personal opinion"was that the RBI should cut the key benchmark interest rates to boost economic growth and ignore food prices while deciding on monetary policy. However, the apex bank is unlikely to take any rate action, believe most others. "Given the rather uncertain global environment and the possible impact on inflation and the fact that inflation has been averaging close to 5.9% in the last two months, a status quo on the repo rate will be the logical outcome from the policy," said Madan Sabnavis, chief economist at Bank of Baroda.

He also believes that there would be a change in RBI projections for both inflation and GDP, as inflation has been higher so far than the RBI forecast for the third quarter, and GDP growth has come much below expectations in the second quarter.

Although the apex bank changed its monetary policy stance to 'neutral' from 'with-

Experts say the rate-setting panel is likely to wait and assess whether the decline in growth is a one-off phenomenon or the start of a trend.

"We are not expecting it (a rate cut) in December because the central bank has to look at whether this slowdown is structural or transient in nature. Therefore, MPC members would like to wait for one more print to ascertain if it is something structurally happening," said Aditya Vyas, chief economist, STCI Primary Dealer.

Experts expect the RBI to take measures to ease liquidity in the banking system. Liquidity in the banking system slipped into deficit last week after two months, primarily because of outflows due to goods and services tax (GST) payments.

"With headline CPI at 6.2%, cutting the reporate immediately (in December) may not be an option for the monetary policy committee. However, the central bank will likely consider infusing a larger quantum of liquidity," said Siddhartha Sanyal, chief economist and head of research at Bandhan Bank.

Brics nations reliance on a single currency,"

Trump's threat to the Brics nations came via a social media post

Trump's latest:

100% tariff on

LAST WEEK, INDIA'S commerce and industry minister Piyush Goyal had allayed fears about adverse implications of Trump's protectionist policies on India, citing the strong and growing ties between the two countries under Prime Minister Narendra Modi.

The latest threat was delivered by Trump through a social media post. He had issued similar threats to China, Canada and Mexico. Trump justifies the moves by quoting the US's status as the world's biggest importer — inward shipments of the country stood at $3.17 trillion in 2023.

"Trump's threat to impose 100% tariffs on countries adopting a BRICS currency is unrealistic and more symbolic than practical. Tariffs of this scale would harm US consumers by raising prices on imports, disrupt global trade, and risk retaliation from key trading partners," founder of the Global Trade Research Initiative Ajay Srivastava said.

The nine-nation grouping, of which India is a founding member, in its 16th summit at Kazan in Russia last month, provided a push to the idea of trade settlement among members in local currencies. The members called for strengthening of correspondent banking networks within BRICS and enabling settlements in local currencies in line with BRICS Cross-Border Payments Initiative (BCBPI). Something concrete may emerge after further discussions in the coming months, officials had said after the summit. While the US dollar dominates global trade accounting for 90% of the transactions, other convertible currencies like Japanese yen, euro and British pound too are integral to global commerce. "The United States has not objected to their use. The proposed BRICS currency is simply an extension of these existing alternatives, aiming to facilitate trade among member Srivastava said.

It is the US's action that forced countries to look at alternatives to the dollar. The US has the history of leveraging its influence over global financial systems such as the SWIFT network for imposing unilateral sanctions.

SWIFT—the Society for Worldwide Interbank Financial Telecommunication—is essential for secure and standardised international financial transactions."By blocking countries like Russia and Iran from accessing SWIFT, the US has effectively weaponised the global financial infrastructure, forcing other nations to find alternative payment mechanisms to continue legitimate trade," he said.

It was after Russia was disconnected from SWIFT after the start of its war on Ukraine that the Reserve Bank of India (RBI) came up with a circular allowing invoicing and payment of international trade transactions in rupees.

Around 20 authorised dealer banks in India have been permitted to open 92 special rupee vostro accounts of partner banks from over 22 countries to facilitate this trade.

According to Srivastava, imposing a 100% tariff on BRICS countries could backfire economically."Imports into the US would simply shift to third countries, potentially increasing costs for American consumers without bringing manufacturing jobs back home. The US has become less competitive in manufacturing labour-intensive goods due to higher production costs, and tariffs are unli-

Additionally, the global shift away from the US dollar is a complex process driven by economic diversification, not easily deterred by threats. Such rhetoric ignores the interdependence of global economies and oversimplifies the challenges in enforcing such drastic measures, Srivastava said.

countries and reduce over-EPFO wage ceiling set to be doubled

WAGE CEILING UNDER EPF and ESI refers to the salary threshold up to which EPF and ESI contribution is mandatory under law. The amount of 'employee's contribution' towards EPF and ESI is required to be deducted from the salary of employees by the employer and be deposited with the EPFO and ESIC.The employers are required to match the contribution. As per the extant rules, employees earning more than ₹15,000 have an option to opt out of EPF coverage. In case this threshold is raised by ₹15,000, the number of contributors will increase. Currently, the active subscribers under EPFO are around 70 million. Under the EPFO, both the employee and employer contribute 12% each to the EPF account for employees earning ₹15,000 or less each month. The employee's whole contribution goes into the provident fund account. But the employer's contribution is divided into two parts – 8.33% is allocated to the Employees' Pension Scheme (EPS) and remaining 3.67% goes into the provident fund account.

At present, the EPF contribuage under ESIC and EPFO."

As per the extant rules. employees earning more than ₹15,000 have an option to opt out of EPF coverage

tion of an employee with a basic salary of ₹15,000 comes to ₹1,800 permonth. But say, if this wage ceiling is revised to ₹30,000, this contribution will rise to ₹3,600 per month, on a mandatory basis. For employers too, this number will rise proportionately on a monthly basis; and as a result, the corpus of the employee will increase upon retirement, and subsequently the pension payout.

SP Tiwari, the national general secretary of the Trade Union Coordination Centre (TUCC) and a member of the CBT-EPFO, said, "In many metro cities, including Delhi, the monthly salaries of many workers such as housekeepers, drivers, security guards, have exceeded ₹15,000 per month. They earn close to ₹20,000...It's necessary that the wage ceiling is raised so that they are also provided social security cover-
